

ABSTRACT

Improved apparatuses, programs, and methods for navigating summarized data are disclosed. Textual data is received, converted into hypertext markup language, and the converted data searched for operator selectable strings indicative of data items having a relatively higher level of import. Information extracted from the converted data is summarized in a report that includes a link from the summary to the location of the string in the converted data.